

While telemarketing might be profitable for marketing companies and is considered "Freedom of Speech," I also have the right to declare my "Freedom of Speech" to exclude telemarkets or cold calling. It is a nuisance and I hang up or blow an air horn on any and all that come through. I will not answer a call that says "Out of Area." That is my choice. That is my right. If you have reason to contact me due to my connection with you, you will not come up "Out of Area" with no telephone number listed. Personally, I have arthritis and running for a ringing phone only to see out of area is very rude, insulting, and I will add - angers me.
